

Chris Harvey

Chris is an experienced executive-level operations manager, specialising in the implementation of advanced management practices and organisational change. He adopts a partnering approach to assist clients achieve their strategic objectives. Chris focuses his efforts to ensure that programs and projects deliver anticipated measurable outcomes. He has applied his analytical and program evaluation skills in many organisational contexts.

Chris' career assignments include roles in a major defence project company, energy infrastructure management, food packaging manufacturing, and petrochemicals. Before forming Middleton Harvey, he worked as Chief Operating Officer with an iconic Not for Profit organisation.

Chris is passionate about running, and disregarding his ageing body, continues as an active member of the Malvern Harriers Athletic Club. He also enjoys getting away for a weekend of hiking, or going down to the beach for a surf.

Chris is a Director of Middleton Harvey.

Major Areas of Focus and Expertise:

- Management Practice
- Change Management
- Business Planning
- Organisational Design and Restructure
- Leadership Development
- Project Management
- Coaching

Qualifications and Memberships:

- Bachelor of Engineering (Hons): Monash University, 1983
- Graduate Diploma Psychological Studies: Deakin University, 2001
- Masters Education: RMIT University, 2008